

Missions

by Andrew Horsfall

The idea of full time missionaries is odd. I'm an engineer and a Christian. You're a student and a Christian, a barista and a Christian, a truck driver and a Christian, a something and a Christian. They're a Christian and a Christian...just a Christian. having a job - a vocation - the normal thing in most cultures - is not their normal. They are set up with an inherent difference from the people they are trying to relate to.